Product Review

geosmart review.

My third son, who happens to be 3, is all about magnet toys. He has zero interest in video games and iPads. Super frustrating because I am constantly having to entertain him or find new challenging toys for him. At the same time, I should be rejoicing because my older two are addicted to media. I know, I know it's better to have the latter. Therefore, I am thankful he takes a liking into building and stem style toys. His little growing brain is being challenged and his little motor skills are improving. One of the toys he is all gaga about is the GeoSmart magnet building toys!

We were given the Lunar Rover for review and how fitting since my lil man adores vehicles. He is so obsessed with this toy that we drag it everywhere and he continues to beg me for more. So, let's break down how cool this set is.

First, the GeoSmart Lunar Rover is:

STEM-Focused Magnetic Construction

- A Patented Double-Locking System for Ultimate Safety
- Strong Magnets and High-Quality Materials
- Included Wheels Bring Movement to Constructions
- Includes 30 Colorful, Geometric Pieces

What makes GeoSmart's line of durable magnetic construction kits stand out to parents is the SAFETY PLEDGE. Kids love to tinker and parents will feel secure with GeoSmart's patented double-lock safety system. Each magnet is encased TWICE to ensure the building piece and not the magnet will be visible to young finders. This sets the HIGH BAR for safety in magnetic construction toys.

So, we got the Lunar Rover and my boy has built way more than just a Lunar Rover with the pieces included. He makes things such as house, shapes, letters, etc. His imagination runs when he's playing with this set. Now these are the kinda toys you want to invest in. He will play for extended times, request more pieces, and ask that I help him build what his mind is imagining. Win win. Now GeoSmart has a lot more to offer than just this set. If you head over to Amazon you can see a plethora of options.

Head over to Amazon to see the full spectrum of these fantastic toys. We are super thankful. Makes Christmas shopping a lil easier for my third.
